

Sue Negrey

Principal, Coach 2 Achieve

Adjunct Coach for Masters' Students at Vanderbilt University and Villanova University

Entrepreneur, MBA and former CPA

Sue is a seasoned executive coach, coaching supervisor and leadership consultant. She partners with executives and emerging leaders to accelerate critical changes and sustain results in themselves and in their organizations. With a systemic approach, Sue has helped her clients expand their perspectives, advance their critical and strategic thinking, and manage through uncertainty. Bringing more than 30 years of experience in management, consulting and coaching to her clients, Sue enables organizations and individuals to achieve their desired changes through increased insight, deliberate practice, and accountability.

Sue has worked with clients ranging from entrepreneurial, family-owned businesses to Fortune 500 companies while serving clients across the globe and across a wide range of industries. From a recent feedback survey a client noted, "My coach worked with me to increase my confidence and executive presence, as reported by my direct leader and my team. She helped me to see where my own self-doubt was getting in my way and to develop tools to recognize and address it."

A former certified public accountant, Sue worked for 15 years at a Big 4, before becoming a key sales leader at a global learning solutions firm serving Fortune 500 companies. After two long-term stints in global firms, Sue pivoted to a more entrepreneurial role as Chief Administrative Officer for a medical practice, driving market growth, employee engagement and supply chain initiatives. Sue also brings extensive experience working in various leadership roles in the not-for-profit sector. Currently she serves on the Board for the Women's Nonprofit Leadership Initiative. Sue previously served on both the boards of the Columbia Coaching Learning Association and the Board of International Coach Federation's NYC Chapter and is an ICF Professional Certified Coach.
